

ART FAIR TOKYO

MARCH 13–15 2026

TOKYO INTERNATIONAL FORUM

PRESS RELEASE

2026/12/01

aTOKYO Co., Ltd. (Head Office: Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo; Representative Director: Kichi Kitajima) announces that it will hold ART FAIR TOKYO 20 at the Tokyo International Forum from Friday 13 March to Sunday 15 March 2026.

Summary

- This year's edition welcomes 141 participating galleries from Japan and abroad, including 10 new exhibitors. The lineup comprises 75 contemporary art galleries, 25 modern art galleries, 17 galleries specializing in antiques, and 13 dedicated to crafts. In addition, four international galleries will join the fair, along with seven exhibitors—including institutions such as the Ishikawa Prefectural Wajima Institute of Lacquer Art—that do not fall within conventional gallery categories.
- Returning for the first time in two years, LEE SAYA will participate alongside leading contemporary art galleries in Japan, including Tomio Koyama Gallery, ShugoArts, Kaikai Kiki Gallery, and TARO NASU, all of which continue their involvement from the previous edition. The fair will also feature exhibitors from the fields of modern art, antiques, and craft, expanding the diversity of the overall program.
- ART FAIR TOKYO 20 will further develop FILMS, the section introduced last year that focuses on moving-image works, presenting a new edition for this year's fair. By strengthening the overall structure of the program, the section aims not only to provide opportunities to view moving-image works, but also to explore the history of the medium and the broader environment surrounding it. Through these initiatives, ART FAIR TOKYO seeks to encourage collectors in Japan to consider moving-image works as viable acquisitions, thereby broadening the scope of collecting and fostering greater recognition of the medium and its practitioners within the domestic art market.

Main Visual

ART FAIR TOKYO 20 will feature artist Tatsuo Miyajima's work Counter Skin in Hiroshima-3 gold as its main visual.

The upcoming ART FAIR TOKYO, scheduled for March 2026, marks the milestone 20th edition of the fair.

Since its inception, we have been committed to maintaining a high standard of quality while avoiding an overemphasis on any single genre. Exhibitions that limit themselves to a narrow field can more easily present a clear thematic focus, and may at times leave visitors with a lively impression. However, we believe that the true purpose of an art fair is to offer a space where diverse expressions converge, enabling audiences to make discoveries across a broad spectrum. In this sense, our mission is to present a microcosm of Japan's artistic frontier—one that encompasses a wide range of genres.

Artworks are, in essence, artists' personal expressions of their intentions and perspectives toward society. Once completed, these works are made public through galleries and ultimately collected or owned by individuals or museums. Yet this sequence of personal actions—collecting, owning, and safeguarding art—constitutes, in itself, a form of social statement. Moreover, through display and circulation, these works influence the communities around them. In other words, the act of collecting art is a private pursuit that simultaneously carries a dimension of public responsibility.

It is often noted—perhaps more widely abroad than within Japan—that a thousand folded cranes symbolize a wish for peace. In the same way, we believe that individual gestures can inspire broader societal change.

We remain committed to fostering an art market in which countless personal actions can meaningfully contribute to positive transformation across society.
